The Dallas Cowboys are seemingly in the market for a linebacker. Jaylon Smith is in the process of returning from a scary football injury and it looks like this will be his last season. The Cowboys have also had some success at getting linebackers. With Jaylon Smith it will be a bit of a coin flip, but at this point the team is clearly moving in the direction of drafting an interior linebacker. Darron Lee has had a solid first three seasons, but has never played a full 16 game season. He will be an unrestricted free agent in 2020, and the Cowboys might look to see if they can extend his contract
